

Rules FAQ from designer (/thread/3623856/rules-faq-from-designer)

Cthulhu: Dark Providence – Amazon $59.98 – Affiliate Link

Travis R. Chance Designer / Publisher
@TRChance 12 dic 2025

Pedro Freitas @Petter_03 wrote:
Hello Travis,

Yesterday I played the game for the first time with my friends, and we had some questions about the following cards:

- Deep Ones
- When a Deep One is assassinated, does it return to the card owner, allowing it to be placed again, or is it permanently removed from the game?
 - Regarding the city-conquering effect: do you need to have, for example, 3 Deep Ones in the specific city that costs 3 VP, or if you have 3 Deep Ones in any city, can you conquer any city that costs 3 or less?

R'Iyeh

- This card has all the symbols, but I can only use one symbol per action. Does this mean that even when using a simple effect, such as placing 1 cube, I still need to perform a sanity check?

Thank you, we loved the game!

Hey! Glad to hear it! To answer your question: yes, they are returned to your personal supply—I believe I covered that above. But yes, you can claim a city with a number of deep ones that exceed its VP.

Yes on R'Iyeh. Sanity check every time in exchange for a city no one can claim.

Ingo Griebisch ⚡
@d0gb0t 12 dic 2025

I don't get either the question or the answer regarding the Deep Ones! 🤔

Travis R. Chance Designer / Publisher
@TRChance 12 dic 2025

Ingo Griebisch @d0gb0t wrote:
I don't get either the question or the answer regarding the Deep Ones! 🤔

Now I'm confused about your confusion.

Jing Wen
@arkanfel 14 dic 2025

For the Imposter card, if it turns a Dissident Investigator into a Dissident Cultist, and there's another Dissident Cultist, then does that mean they're both eliminated if one of them has the lowest score?

Ingo Griebisch ⚡
@d0gb0t 14 dic 2025

Travis R. Chance @TRChance wrote:

Ingo Griebisch @d0gb0t wrote:
I don't get either the question or the answer regarding the Deep Ones! 🤔

Now I'm confused about your confusion.

Sorry, Travis, I think my comment was too short to explain myself adequately.

To me, Pedro's question about the Deep Ones sounded like he was asking the same thing twice. In addition, he asked about “3 or less.” You only answered his “or” question with ‘yes’ and “exceed its VP.” Therefore, I didn't understand from your answer exactly how I can claim a city with the Deep Ones. Hence my confusion.

After reading the card, I now understand that you can claim a city with the Deep Ones if you have at least as many Deep Ones in the city as the city is worth in victory points. Is that correct? 😊

Oliver Morris
@Arcesilaus 14 dic 2025

Jing Wen @arkanfel wrote:
For the Imposter card, if it turns a Dissident Investigator into a Dissident Cultist, and there's another Dissident Cultist, then does that mean they're both eliminated if one of them has the lowest score?

Unless I'm missing something, I don't see any way for a game to have both a Dissident Investigator and a Dissident Cultist at the start of the game. So I don't think this can happen.

Anthony Rubbo  ⚡ Designer
@LemonyFresh 14 dic 2025

You can have both. But Dissidents never have any teammates.

Jing Wen
@arkanfel 14 dic 2025

Oliver Morris @Arcesilaus wrote:

Jing Wen @arkanfel wrote:
For the Imposter card, if it turns a Dissident Investigator into a Dissident Cultist, and there's another Dissident Cultist, then does that mean they're both eliminated if one of them has the lowest score?

Unless I'm missing something, I don't see any way for a game to have both a Dissident Investigator and a Dissident Cultist at the start of the game. So I don't think this can happen.

We're playing a 3p game where we prepare 1 investigator and 1 cultist and 2 dissidents. So it's possible to have both dissidents picked. So if one of them uses Imposter, they will become the other one as well, hence creating a team? Since under Determining The Winner, it just says to eliminate all players of the Allegiance where one has the lowest VP.

Anthony Rubbo  ⚡ Designer
@LemonyFresh 14 dic 2025

Anthony Rubbo @LemonyFresh wrote:
Dissidents never have any teammates.

Jing Wen
@arkanfel 14 dic 2025

Anthony Rubbo @LemonyFresh wrote:

Anthony Rubbo @LemonyFresh wrote:
Dissidents never have any teammates.

I guess then the only thing that changes is how the Imposter dissident scores.

Schierke Schierke
@Schierke 7 mar

Travis R. Chance @TRChance wrote:
AGENT INFLUENCE: Agents count as influence for both the city and the asset cards in in which that agent is present.

This is likely a very easy rule and a stupid question to ask, but I struggle to understand what this means: I get the point on providing 1 additional influence to a city for claiming purposes, but do not get what the asset cards part means.

Travis R. Chance   Designer / Publisher
@TRChance 7 mar

The revealed card in the city.

Schierke Schierke
@Schierke 7 mar

Travis R. Chance @TRChance wrote:
The revealed card in the city.

Got it!
Thank you very much for clarifying - I guess the missing 'city' in the sentence was what caused my confusion.
Really looking forward to play the game for the first time next Tuesday - I did not play any of the older versions, but have been interested in trying / buying since the first edition, but never finally decided. So this third edition arrived perfectly timed for me!

Travis R. Chance

Designer / Publisher

@TRChance 7 mar

Have fun!!!

Andrew Aganov

@Aganov 8 mar

At first — big thanks for your work and constant support here.

Just one thing that I'd like to clarify: in assassination and opening the gate sections it is said that player should use as few cards as possible. So does it mean that if I am short of two 🗳️, and I've got one card with two 🗳️ that I want to use as my next action and two cards with one 🗳️ that I don't need right now, I am forced to play the card with two 🗳️? And (sorry, I've had such experience several times) it also means that in case if I will spend two cards I am forced to show my hand to prove that I couldn't play with fewer cards? Or is it just a paraphrase of the rule that you cannot spend more cards than needed for your action?

Travis R. Chance

Designer / Publisher

@TRChance 8 mar

The latter. You cannot spend more than is necessary as in overspend.

Josef Hanzl

@Pepsson 8 abr

Hello

I have a question and did not find answer anywhere. If I have Mi-go and agent on opponent's Harry Houdini's agent's space, can I assassinate him, since Mi-Go cancels all printed icons and effects?